

CIRCUIT COURT OPENS; DOCKET IS HEAVY

JUDGE PEARCE CHARGES
GRAND JURY YESTER-DAY AFTERNOON

Yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock Judge H. A. Pearce, of the circuit court charged the grand jury, and court began, with a heavy docket. Cy Fellows was sworn in as bailiff, and the jurymen were turned over to him to get busy.

The judge's charge to the jury was impressive in every detail, and dealt on many things of interest to the citizens of this county. The prohibition laws were touched upon, but not to any great extent, and the attention of the jury was directed to several minor matters to be investigated.

The docket is heavily laden for this term of court, and many people from over the county are here attending the session. The grand jury room is crowded to its capacity, and many eager law-breakers and witnesses are thronging the court house awaiting their turn.

The first case of civil week, which began yesterday, was called this morning, and this was the case of M. E. Carmichael vs. The United States Fidelity and Guarantee Company. The jury rendered their verdict a short while before noon for the plaintiff in the sum of $500.

NEGRO FLAGS TRAIN AND PREVENTS WRECK

PROBABLY SAVES LIVES OF MANY PERSONS—FINDS LOOSENEED RAIL

Vicksburg, Miss., Oct. 31.—An attempt to wreck a westbound Alabama and Vicksburg passenger train near Edwards, Miss., failed tonight because of the presence of mind of a negro farm hand who was making his way afoot between stations, a short distance in advance of the train.

When the train, heavily laden with excursionists, returning from the State Fair at Jackson, was brought to a standstill in response to the negro's frantic waving of a lantern, it was within a short distance of a loosened rail. After a search in the immediate vicinity without success, for those responsible, the rail was made fast and the train continued to Vicksburg arriving two hours late.

A systematic search is being made late tonight for the would-be train wreckers.

Horace Brackett of Montgomery has been here on a visit to friends and relatives.

PARK DRAMATIC COMPANY PLAYS TO PACKED HOUSE

The old reliable C. W. Parks Dramatic Co., opened last night their seasons engagement in this city to an overflowing audience which showed their appreciation of the company's endeavors by repeated outburst of continued applause. The production last night was really something new to the theatre-goers here entitled, "For Home and Honor." It is a strong play beautifully costumed and the scenery was all that could be desired. Mr. Park has gathered together a company of people capable of better things than the author of last night's work rendered and we look forward to a week of excellent plays correctly interpreted. "For Home and Honor" is a play that teaches us many lessons of morality in the home, and there was not a person present last night who did not leave the canvass opera house with words of praise for the clever work of the company in general.

Let us not forget the vaudeville numbers between the acts, especially the Langly Sisters, who did a pleasing singing specialty, Jack Kearney, the comedian, introduced his "quartet" and scored a big hit. Earl Bonner pleased in his monologue, while Mr. Moncrief delighted in a German talk-

Mobile, Oct. 31.—George Cieutat, a well known truck gardener, residing on Fulton road, west of the city, and near the gas well, committed suicide this morning at his home, using a shotgun.

Miss Margaret Tucker was clever in the role of Madame Weber. Mr. Ezell was as bad a villain as could be, and Norman Field was a handsome Captain Weber. Taken all in all, it is a clever company, and Mr. Park is to be commended for bringing us the best he has ever had. We looked forward to this week with pleasant anticipations, and were not disappointed.

Tonight, a detective play, "The Woman in Red," is announced, and no doubt an immense audience will greet this popular company.

The show is clean, moral and refined, the same as ever before.

Perish Him Out

Atlanta is to have a meeting of the commissioners of agriculture of the various southern states sometime next month. Among some of the helpful subjects they will discuss, will be the boll weevil. It is not known what they propose to do with the b. w., but they are after him.

You know when delegates go off to a city like Atlanta to meet and discuss the evils of the day, they are more interested in seeing the sights, and securing a good room at a hotel, to be paid for by someone else, than they are the evils they went out for. They may take up the boll weevil question, but they will get no further than appointing a committee with full power to act, and to report back to the next meeting, a year hence.

The boll weevil is due in Alabama next year, and the year after he will cause a good deal of trouble, in all probability. We always wait till trouble comes before we bar the door. When he comes, and cuts our money crop half in two, we will regard him as a serious enemy. Now, we view him from afar, and all feel glad that we don't live in Texas, where he has been giving so much trouble.

The government will be asked to appropriate a boll weevil fund, for the hunting down and capturing his enemy, dead or alive. Then, someone will stagger up on a remedy, by accident, and he will have no terrors.

But it will take an accident. You know a year or two ago, some fellow was going to bring over a lot of bugs from Australia, that literally ate boll weevils alive—lived off them, in fact, when they were at home. Most of us thought this all hosh at the time, but it afforded something to talk about, and make us guess what the new bug would do when he got through with the weevils.

The surest way to do away with the boll weevil is to perish him to death. He might survive on another diet, but it seems that the cotton boll, when in its tender state is his choicest diet. If we watched him close enough, we might discover that he had to live for a time before the bolls got far enough advanced. Then we ought to see what he lives on. Most insects of his kind can live off more than one thing. You take the bill worm, the cut worm, and the tomato bug, and they will eat half a dozen different things. The b. w. can and does, too, if we could only find out what it is. Then when we do, we should put the other things in his way, or take cotton out of his way. A crop or two of something else, would perish his tribe out.

"UNCLE REMUS"

Colonel Roosevelt's praise of Joel Chandler Harris, at the unveiling of a monument to the author of "Uncle Remus" at Atlanta, will find an echo in every heart.

There is no analogy for Joel Chandler Harris in literature. No other individual has worked so faithfully and intelligently to preserve the spirit of an epoch in race history as this man, who succeeded in portraying every phase of the ante-bellum negro. It is unfortunate that, in this new country, the changes in individual and group conditions are so rapid that unless a sympathetic biographer is on the ground, ready to play Boswell to some amusing Dr. Johnson, a rare literary opportunity is lost forever. This has been especially true of the West. The South has been more fortunate, inasmuch as it has had a group of literary men "on the spot" to catch, with camera-like reality, the fleeting conditions among which they lived.

But all these men are tyros compared with Harris, who stole out night after night to the negro quarters on the old plantation, where his youthful years were spent, and caught the folk-tales of the old-time negroes. Some of these tales are as old as the pyramids. The wonderful tar-baby story has been written on stone tablets and deciphered by archaeological experts of this generation. But it was not enough for Joel Chandler Harris to catch the drift of the stories as they were passed about. He gave to their translation the same sort of literary distinction that Fitz Gerald gave to Omar's quatrains. He was no mere amanuensis, but poet and philosopher, and, above all, he had the easily kindled imagination of a child.

The "Uncle Remus" stories are many, but there is none that will fail to awaken the eager interest of a normal child, and for that very reason Joel Chandler Harris' work must endure as long as literature itself for the writer whose appeal is to the children can never die.—Denver Republican.

About Names

Since the time of Adam and Eve a whole lot of dog has been piled on in the fancy names for folks. Those two first, were about as short and simple as one might wish, and you could hardly spell them but the one way. Now it is fashionable to have a name that can be spelled at least two ways, especially if the name be for a girl.

While we are on the subject of names, we would appreciate a word of light. When did we, as a people, adopt two names, that is, a front name and a back one?

None of the older directories give much light on the subject, and old newspaper files are strangely silent on the matter.

The sheriff who has charge of Dr. Crippen, it seems, has authority to fix hanging dates, and he has exercised that authority in Crippen's case by moving on the date a week. Probably the sheriff has a hunting trip to come off at the time the hanging was scheduled, and he wants no conflict.

Who cares for the first of the month, anyway? No trouble to put a bill off the first day, with a command to "come later in the week."

The lights grow weak and the water in the stand pipe runs low in this town, indicating that something is wrong somewhere. The plant may be overloaded, or the machinery may be in need of repairs, or of being replaced by new. The standpipe ought to be kept pretty well filled with water, it looks like, for at times in some of the two and three story buildings the water gets very weak. This town is getting too big to take any chances on the power plant going down and creating trouble.

Why Paris? Cincinnati Times-Star.

The male sex as a rule doesn't know why the average woman wants her fashions from Paris. One of them has had the temerity to say so on paper and in print on this page. He got a prompt and apparently conclusive answer from a member of the sex that looks to Paris for all the newest wrinkles in feminine furbelows.

Just why Paris should be the court of last resort in fashions no man will ever quite understand. But as custom seems to have made it so and as those who are most interested in fashion still believe that dresses and hats that come from the French capital have an indefinable and unapproachable "something" that no other city can give, we are forced to bow to the decree and not question why.

An interesting fact, however, can be added to this decision. One of the biggest magazines devoted to the home and women in this country is making a strenuous and determined stand for American-made fashions, declaring that this country has as much taste as France and that they will prove it. Maybe so! But as the magazine is managed and edited by men, we may be allowed to have our doubts—and to offer our sympathies in advance of the Waterloo that is looming up in the distance for the courageous editor and publisher who are riding for a fall.

That was a pretty good spurt the Dothan City Schools took today in the Eagle Library contest. They're working for those books.

HALOWEEN PARTY

A delightful occasion of the week was the Haloween party given last night at the home of Miss Annie Johnson on West Main street, by the Menders, a sewing club recently organized by the ladies of the younger society set.

The apartments of the home were thrown together for the occasion and were prettily decorated with Japanese lanterns, pumpkins and apples and the jolly Haloween spirit prevailed the air.

The guests were met at the door
by Mrs. C. W. Newton, who played the role of the ghost, and were ushered to the parlor door, where the witch, little Miss Irma Trawick, brushed them off.

In the dimly lighted parlor each guest was arranged before an electric fan and introduced to the shrouded hosts, who went under an assumed "spook" name.

After all the guests had arrived the boys were taken, one by one,

ly, by one of the female ghosts that made up the circle around them. After receiving their kiss, they were unmasked and requested to write down the name of the guilty girl. Each of the girls received a number of votes, but no one guessed right, for it was little Miss Trawick who did the work, while they were blindfolded, then hiding again, kept them guessing.
Bobbing for apples was one of the games that furnished enjoyment during the evening.

Each girl was allowed to snatch an apple for a supper partner, and in the dining room a delightful "dumb" supper of salads was served on the floor.

The Menders will meet every Friday afternoon. The following ladies who were present last night are the members: Misses Annie Johnson, Mabel Hill, Laucy
Reeves, Leola Faulk, Eunice Rogers, Louise Clendinen, Kathleen Tennille, Fannie Florence. About ten gentlemen guests were present at the entertainment given last night.

The Menders were assisted in entertaining by Mrs. J. T. Trawick, Mrs. C. W. Newton and Miss Louise Florence.

A SUBSTANTIAL INSTITUTION

Always prospers. The opening of the Campbell Institute of Shorthand and Accounting in Dothan, Ala., on Oct. 3rd 1910 is the beginning of what promises to be one of the most substantial business colleges in Alabama.

The young people do not have to go to the large cities and spend a small fortune getting a first class commercial training.

A good school of Bookkeeping, Shorthand, Typewriting and Commercial English, in a good little city, under the direct supervision of an experienced business college man, invites the youth of the South to accept this superior training at a very reasonable figure.

Importance Of Life Insurance

Do you realize the importance of life insurance? If not, you should begin thinking at once, for life is uncertain, and death being the case, WHY DELAY?

To carry a policy in the Home that has just been organized in Dothan cost you over TWO CENTS A DAY, you would not mind paying that small amount to know that when you died, your family would be well provided for.

Often you hear a man say "if I knew I was going to die soon, I would take out life insurance but that is a poor argument, as many men have died not leaving his family One cause he thought he would live a long time."

This is where the uncertainty of life is, in, and where the wise man takes time to get a forelock and provides for the future that are looking to him for protection.

ADORATION OF BEAUTY.

No normal human being exists who does not admire and carve beauty. The basis of the craving is the desire to please and attract the opposite sex. Deny the fact as one may, that is the truth. There never was a woman, since Eve, whose dearest desire was other than to make herself most pleasing in the sight of men, and there hasn't been a man since Adam who would pass up any slightest opportunity to make the girls take notice of him. That accounts largely for the freakish clothes we see, that are called "the fashion." And it accounts for a number of other things, very foolish in themselves, which women and men do.

Beauty is a pagan idol at whose shrine millions worship daily; and there are untold numbers of ministers to that idolatry who wax fat and prosper on the mental aberration. Our newspapers and magazines are not free from the "beauty craze." They have a very correct idea of what their readers wish to read, and that is what they give them. The number of "beauty doctors" is practically beyond counting. They thrive in every city and are represented in every publication that has circulation even within the sight of the smoke of its own chimney. Millions of dollars are paid out each year for preparations that will smooth wrinkles, remove moles and darken grey hairs. Women don't want to think they are growing old. They are willing to give any price for anything that will have the semblance of perpetuating youth. It has been so from time immemorial, and will be so until the crack of doom. It is natural. And men are not in the least whit different from woman in this particular. The men buy hair dyes and pads just as the women do. They are not in a position to point a finger at anybody.

With it all, are not the artifices that make for beauty rather desirable than otherwise? Are they reprehensible in the slightest degree? There is no good reason in the world why a woman at fifty should be stooped and wrinkled and "tippety." Look at Sarah Bernhardt and Ellen Terry. Both are more than fifty years of age. Neither has a wrinkle. Both are grandmothers. Neither is old. They have taken care of themselves. They have not scorned "beauty" recipes. They have scrubbed on face cream and stuck "wrinkle plasters" on their faces from time to time as occasion might seem to demand.

Many of us are prone to laugh at the "beauty stunts" of the women. But, really, they are not foolish. There is a definite purpose ahead of them. It is to make life brighter and more lovable and livable.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

It takes hardship a long time to sail out of sight.

When a wise man converses he says as little as possible.

It's easier for a man to deceive himself than it is to fool his neighbors.

One way to demonstrate the uncertainty of a sure thing is to bet on it.

And sometimes the wife of a self-made man wishes he had used better raw material.

GRACE

Perhaps it is a sense of humor that prevents many a man from taking himself as seriously as he wants other people to.

THE FAT FROM THE FLOWER.

There is not a single kind of animal food which we might not replace with a vegetable counterpart. In most cases it is merely a matter of choice which is preferred, animal or the vegetable. In the matter of cooking fats, however, the vegetable is by far the advantage. Lard is made from the fat of hogs, often impure and unclean, always indigestible. Cottonseed comes from the cotton fields of the Sunny South. It makes food that can be digested with ease, even by invalids. Cottolene is recommended alike by physicians and noted cooking experts as much more healthful and desirable than lard.
